FOUNDATION'S $250,000 GIFT MAKES WORLD FOOD PRIZE PROJECT POSSIBLE

RENDA LUTZ/REGISTER PHOTOS

From left, Ryan Clutter and Vicki Sehgal, directors of the Sehgal Family Foundation; Allison Fleming, grant-making committee chairwoman of the Greater Des Moines Community Foundation; and Kenneth Quinn, president of the World Food Prize, celebrate the Greater Des Moines Community Foundation's $250,000 gift to the World Food Prize.

Julie Linn, left, and Sara Hill, Des Moines Founders Garden Club members, are among those who appreciate the $250,000 donation to the World Food Prize, made June 9.

John Ruan IV, Bankers Trust commercial lender, and Jody Reynolds and Kip Albertson, chief financial officer and vice president at Bankers Trust, are all smiles.

Martha Willits, CEO of the Greater Des Moines Partnership; Johnny Danos, president of the Greater Des Moines Community Foundation; and Libby Jones of Principal Financial Group cheer the donation.

Kenneth Quinn speaks about the world map to be placed in the public gardens at the Norman E. Borlaug Hall of Laureates, thanks to the $250,000 donation.

Jan Douglas, World Food Prize executive assistant; Delpha Musgrave, a Business Women's Association Foundation board member; and Anne Musgrave, special assistant to the president of the World Food Prize, attend the June 9 reception.
